

Nicki Gorini is an Executive and Life Coach, specializing in personal development, performance and leadership coaching. Nicki served on the leadership team and taught coaches at Accomplishment Coaching Coaches Training Program in San Diego, CA. There, she had the unique opportunity to provide professional coaching and training to human resources professionals at the United Nations Family Population Fund (UNFPA).

Nicki works with leaders, business owners, entrepreneurs and both small and large organizations, including real estate, health care, law firms and medical device companies. She was the Coach in Residence at PFC at La Costa Resort & Spa working with people from all over the world on their lives and wellbeing. At Bridgepoint Education, she worked with all levels of leadership. She designed and facilitated leadership development programs impacting leadership effectiveness and talent development of the organization.

Nicki holds the credential of a Professional Certified Coach (PCC) through the International Coach Federation. She is also certified in DiSC (behavioral styles), Emotional Intelligence, and trained in Gallup's Strength based leadership programs.

Nicki believes human beings want to shine their hearts and their unique talents and strengths. Her philosophy is that we are all sharing the human experience as a collective whole to expand and inspire one another.

Nicki earned a BA in English Literature from the University of New Hampshire and later earned her coaching credential from the Accomplishment Coaching Coaches Training Program. Nicki's professional experience includes serving as Deputy Press Secretary for the Pennsylvania State Treasurer. Originally from New Jersey, Nicki loves calling San Diego home where she enjoys the beauty and outdoors as well as visiting a new National Park each year.
